Message from the Chairman

by Joseph J. McGettigan, Sr.

One of the most frequently asked questions of a real estate commissioner concerns the number of complaints the commission receives and how many disciplinary actions it orders. The answer is a lot. The Legal Office Report beginning on page 16 reflects the complaint and disciplinary action information that was provided to the commission by the legal office at its June 2007 meeting.

To summarize: between July 1, 2006, and May 31, 2007, the Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs received 1,218 complaints associated with real estate licensees, an increase of more than 200 complaints from the prior fiscal year. During that same time, the commission imposed 231 disciplinary sanctions, including revocations, suspensions, Act 48 citations, reprimands and civil penalties. This also represented an increase from the prior fiscal year.

The complaints that the commission received ran the gamut of statutory and regulatory violations, from incompetence and unlicensed or lapsed licensed practice, to escrow violations, sexual misconduct and substantial misrepresentations. Table 5 on page 20 provides a list of violations, based on the initial complaints, for which the commission imposed a disciplinary sanction. (Note that the number of violations in the table exceeded the number of disciplinary sanctions actually taken because multiple complaints contained multiple violations.)

In addition to reviewing cases based on complaints, the commission also reviewed almost 200 criminal convictions for real estate applicants. These convictions ranged from driving under the influence, criminal mischief and harassment to aggravated assault, vehicular homicide and involuntary manslaughter. As in the disciplinary matters, the commission provided an opportunity for applicants to explain their criminal convictions to the commission, in these cases, through the enforcement committee. In 63 instances, the commission held informal conferences.

On a different topic, the commission would like to welcome new commissioners Alexis Barbieri, Esquire, Jeffrey Johnson, John McGarry and Jack Sommer, new commission administrator Patricia Ridley and new commission education administrator Katie Douglas.

Application Recommendations

by Patricia A. Ridley, Commission Administrator

Within the last 11 months, commission staff received almost 50,000 telephone calls and processed more than 10,000 applications, including initial applications and changes to name, address, and broker. A great number of the calls relate to application questions: What form do I use? How much money do I send? What is the status of my application?

The following are some recommendations that should assist with completing the application and should reduce discrepancies.

General information

- Before beginning any application, check the commission's Web site at www.dos.state.pa.us/estate to make sure that you are using the most up-to-date form.
- Read the instructions carefully and complete the entire application. Many applicants submit the wrong fees, or fail to include the required documents. Others omit portions of the application.
- Make sure your birth date and Social Security number are listed on the criminal background check that you receive from the Pennsylvania State Police.
- Copies of all criminal documents, as well as any other documents specified on the application, must be included with the application if you have been convicted or pled guilty or nolo contendere to a crime other than a summary offense. Once all of the required documentation is received, it can be reviewed by the commission's enforcement committee. Because the committee only meets monthly and a conference may be needed after an initial paper review, this process could take several months.
- Use your legal name on all applications, even if you are commonly known by a nickname and have registered that nickname (for your first name only) with the commission.
- Unless an application specifically asks for the broker's multi-license number, ALWAYS use the brokerage (RB or SB) number and ALWAYS use the broker's full name, not its trade or "d/b/a" name.

- On initial licensure applications, copies of transcripts must accompany the application. PSI, the examination vendor, does not forward that documentation to the commission.
- The criminal background check from the Pennsylvania State Police (or the State Police where the licensee resides) must be dated within three months of the application date.
- Certifications of licensure for reciprocal applicants/licensees must also be dated within three months of the application date.
- A license may only be kept in escrow for five years (from the expiration date or the escrow date – whichever comes first). Beyond the five years, licensees are required by law to retake the examination before obtaining a license and resuming practice. Licensees are responsible for monitoring when the license expires.
- To check the status of an application for individuals who are applying for an initial license, go to www.mylicense.state.pa.us. Individuals who are currently licensed can check the status of their license at www.licensepa.state.pa.us.

Brokers

- Obtain approval from the Corporation Bureau before submitting an application for licensure as a corporation or sole proprietorship using a fictitious name. A copy of that approval must be attached to the licensure application.
- Sole proprietorships may not use a group name (such as Inc. or Associates).
- Form SPOA 2108A must be submitted whenever an office address or entity name is being changed. Before the change goes into effect, the entity must pass inspection.

Renewal Responsibilities

Whose duty is it to renew a salesperson's/associate broker's/campground salesperson's/cemetery salesperson's license ... the broker's or the individual licensee's?

The answer is the licensee's. While it has become commonplace in many real estate offices for the office to renew all of the licenses for everyone associated/employed by the office at the same time, the duty to renew a license actually rests with the licensee.

Section 301 of the Real Estate Licensing and Registration Act (RELRA) requires licensees to obtain initial licenses in order to practice. Thereafter, Section 604(a)(21) requires that licensees keep that license current in order to continue practicing. Failure to do so can result in disciplinary action against the licensee for unlicensed practice.

Before on-line renewal, having the office collecting and mailing all of the renewal applications together was not a problem. Each licensee completed and signed the renewal application and provided it to the office to mail to the commission for renewal. However, with the advent of online renewal, having one person in the office renew each licensee is a problem. The reason is that each licensee is responsible for answering specific questions, such as: Have you been convicted of a crime since your last renewal? Have you completed the required continuing education?

Therefore, for this renewal cycle, it is advisable for all real estate licensees to change the way they renew:

1. Instead of renewing as a company, brokers should renew their own licenses as soon as they receive their renewal application. (It is expected that broker renewal applications will be mailed out a few weeks before the salespersons applications.) That would allow the rest of the licensees in the office to renew throughout the renewal period rather than having licenses wait in the computer system until the broker has renewed.

2. Salespersons should also renew their own licenses.

One last note: while licensees have an individual duty to renew, brokers still have the duty to ensure that all licensees associated/employed with the office have a current license, as part of their duty to supervise imposed by Section 604(a)(16) of the RELRA.

Broker Price Opinion

by Daniel A. Bradley, Vice Chairman
State Board of Real Estate Appraisers

Recently, many companies have been asking licensed real estate brokers and salespersons in Pennsylvania to provide what are known as “broker price opinions” for a variety of purposes, including mortgage lending, pre-foreclosure, and litigation. These assignments typically involve researching comparable sales and listings, and developing a value opinion (or a range of value), which is then reported on a form provided by the company requesting the service.

The term “broker price opinion,” or BPO, is not referenced in the Real Estate Licensing and Registration Act (RELRA), the Real Estate Appraisers Certification Act (REACA), or the rules and regulations of the State Real Estate Commission and the State Board of Certified Real Estate Appraisers. Depending on its purpose, a BPO assignment requires either a comparative market analysis, or CMA, under the RELRA or a real estate appraisal under the REACA.

Section 201 of the RELRA defines “comparative market analysis” as follows:

“A written analysis, opinion or conclusion by a contracted buyer’s agent, transactional licensee, or an actual or potential seller’s agent relating to the probable sale price of a specified piece of real estate in an identified real estate market at a specified time, offered either for the purpose of determining the asking / offering price for the property by a specific actual or potential consumer or for the purpose of securing a listing agreement with a seller.”

Section 2 of the REACA defines “appraisal” as follows:

“A written analysis, opinion or conclusion relating to the nature, quality, value or utility of specified interests in, or aspects of, identified real property, for or in expectation of compensation.”

Accordingly, if a licensed real estate broker or salesperson who is not a certified real estate appraiser receives a request for a BPO, he or she may lawfully perform the assignment only if it requires a service that qualifies as a comparative market analysis. The only acceptable purposes of a comparable market analysis are to secure a listing agreement or to determine an asking or offering price for an actual or potential client. If the BPO assignment is for other purposes, such as mortgage lending, litigation, or private mortgage insurance removal, then the assignment requires an appraisal, which can only be performed by a certified real estate appraiser and must be in compliance with the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice (USPAP).

A licensed real estate broker or salesperson who performs a comparative market analysis is required under Section 608.3 of the RELRA to include the following verbatim statement in a conspicuous manner on the first page of the analysis:

“This analysis has not been performed in accordance with the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice which require valuers to act as unbiased, disinterested third parties with impartiality, objectivity and independence and without accommodation of personal interest. It is not to be construed as an appraisal and may not be used as such for any purpose.”

A licensed associate real estate broker or salesperson may not receive compensation for performing a comparative market analysis directly from the client that requested it; rather, the compensation must be paid through the employing real estate broker.

Companies and others that engage the services of real estate licensees may not be familiar with the requirements of the RELRA and the commission’s rules and regulations because they are not subject to these requirements. Real estate licensees, on the other hand, are subject to these requirements, and it is the licensees’ responsibility to be aware of and comply with them. Just because a potential client requests a service does not mean that it is legal or ethical for a real estate licensee to provide it.

Renewal Reminders

With the renewal only months away, the commission tried to anticipate licensee questions and provide responses.

Q How will licensees know when to renew?

The commission will be sending a notice to active licensees telling them that it is time to renew and providing instructions about how to renew. Upon receipt of that notice, licensees will be able to renew.

Q When should licensees expect that notice?

About the beginning of March 2008.

Q What should a licensee do if he or she does not get a renewal notice?

It depends upon whether the license is active or inactive.

If the license is active but the licensee has not received the renewal, perhaps because the notice went to a prior address, the licensee can either print a renewal notice from the commission's Web site or renew online using the registration code mentioned below.

If the license is inactive or expired, the licensee will need to reactivate the license. Information about reactivation is available on the commission's Web site at www.dos.state.pa.us/estate.

Q How can licensees access the online renewal system?

The renewal notice will include a licensee-specific registration code that will allow each active licensee access to the online renewal system.

Q What should a licensee do if he or she loses the renewal letter with the registration code? Can the licensee still renew online?

Yes. The same registration code that is included in the renewal notice is printed on every wallet card immediately below the license expiration date.

Q Which is the faster renewal method: online or by mail?

Renewing online is much faster than renewing by mail. Where the broker has already renewed, the turnaround time for online renewal — from the electronic submission to receipt of an actual license — is about 10 days. Renewal by mail takes a minimum of several weeks.

Q If a licensee does not choose to renew online, how can a licensee renew by mail?

Licensees can either print a renewal notice from the commission's Web site using their registration code or send the commission a written request to be mailed a paper application.

Q Does online renewal actually work?

Yes. Last renewal period about 80 percent of all real estate licensees renewed online.

Q Do brokers have to renew in order for salespersons or associate brokers to renew?

No. Salespersons and associate brokers are permitted to renew their licenses online prior to their brokers renewing, however, the salespersons and associate brokers' licenses will not be issued until after the broker renews. As a result, the 10-day turnaround time mentioned above would not apply.

Q May licensees who have had criminal convictions or been disciplined in another state since the last renewal renew online?

Yes. These licensees are permitted to renew their licenses online, however, these licenses will not be issued until after the licensees supply the required documentation about the conviction. As a result, the 10-day turnaround time mentioned above would not apply.

Q If a licensee has not completed the required 14 hours of continuing education, will the licensee be permitted to renew?

No. Licensees must certify, under penalty of perjury and potential disciplinary action, that they have completed the required continuing education. If a licensee answers that he or she has not completed the education, the license will not be renewed until the licensee provides proof that he or she has in fact completed the required hours.

Q Are licensees who fail to renew by May 31, 2008, permitted to practice on or after June 1, 2008?

No. Licensees who fail to renew are not permitted to practice after their licenses expire. Further, after the renewal deadline, they are required to reactivate their licenses, by providing proof that they have completed their continuing education.

Q Must reciprocal licensees complete continuing education in order to renew?

No. A reciprocal licensee is required to complete the continuing education in the state where he/she holds his/her standard licenses but must provide the commission with proof of current licensure in that state.

Prosecution's Charging Unit Celebrates One-Year Anniversary

by Basil Merenda, Commissioner, Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs

The charging unit hit the ground running in August 2006. It has been quite successful in saving time and resources for the prosecution department under the direction of Peter Marks, executive deputy chief counsel, and C.A.L. Shields, Bureau of Enforcement and Investigation (BEI) director and a former four-term elected district attorney from Schuylkill County.

This unit consists of four prosecutors, BEI's director and deputy director. It meets daily to review and analyze complaints and investigations of professional misconduct on behalf of the 27 boards and commissions. The unit makes prosecutorial decisions, including dismissals, reinvestigations, negotiated consent agreements, re-reviews, and recommendations for formal action by trial prosecutors. It allows decision-making at a much earlier time in the process and subjects each case to analysis by at least two or more experienced prosecutors. The result is quicker, better and more efficient decision-making and processing of professional complaints.

The charging unit is a concept that Governor Edward G. Rendell used while he was district attorney of Philadelphia. As district attorney, Gov. Rendell used the charging unit to reduce the criminal case backlog in Philly. In fact, most, if not all, of the district attorneys in Pennsylvania use a charging unit of some sort to process criminal complaints and to control the criminal case backlog in their counties. Based on my experience as an intern with the Philly DA's office during that time, I wanted to adapt a "charging" unit to what we do here at BPOA.

As you see, the charging unit solves two problems: it coordinates the legal office, compliance department and BEI under a single unit; and it brings a legal analysis into the complaint review process as soon as a consumer files a complaint with BPOA.

Keep up the great work streamlining the processes and saving time and resources to better serve the citizens of Pennsylvania.

REMINDERS

State Emergency Registry of Volunteers in Pennsylvania (SERVPA)

Every one of us can immediately recall where we were on Sept. 11, 2001. Most of us can recall our response in the days, weeks and months after those terrorist attacks. We did not need the pictures in our papers or the video on our televisions because the evidence was in our own communities — everyday individuals lending a hand. Whether it was donating blood or making journeys to help remove the rubble, people were volunteering. No one needed an academic degree or years of experience. All that was needed was the desire to help and the time to do so.

Sept. 11 taught us so much, including the necessity for volunteers during times of emergency. More states continue to understand the importance of emergency preparedness in times of disaster, and Pennsylvania is no different. We now have an even greater way to come together as Pennsylvanians and volunteer: SERVPA.

SERVPA is a comprehensive program to manage the recruitment, registration, vetting and potential deployment of volunteers. It allows for online:

1. Registration of individuals interested in serving during an emergency, including the collection and validation of identity, credentials, licenses and other key information.
2. Coordination of preparedness planning, including the analysis of the size and composition of the volunteer workforce.
3. Activation and deployment of volunteer, including the initial notification, polling for availability, assignment, and tracking of participation.

Asking yourself, “How can I commit when I do not know if I will be available when an emergency occurs?” Not a problem. Registration in SERVPA does not commit a volunteer to respond to an emergency. Instead, it reflects your interest in being contacted as needs arise. You get to decide. When the time is right, we know you will answer the call.

To give you some background on SERVPA, Congress authorized the development of an Emergency System for the Advanced Registration of Volunteer Health Professionals (ESAR-VHP) in 2005. SERVPA is Pennsylvania’s response both to the federal initiative and to Pennsylvania’s own need for a single database of volunteers across the state. This allows for advancing enrollment and credentialing of volunteers which aids in the deployment of needed people like you during an emergency.

Pennsylvania knows it takes a variety of skill sets to respond adequately to an emergency. This is why any resident of the commonwealth, age 16 or older, is welcome to register in SERVPA. We are on our way to making SERVPA the single registry used to activate volunteers for a state-declared emergency. It will also be the source used to respond to requests for emergency assistance from other states. Since the SERVPA registry was designed in coordination with response partners at all levels of state and local governments, along with the existing network of community service groups and Pennsylvania’s special emergency response teams in mind, SERVPA’s software and registry can be used effectively at the local community level.

Register to be a volunteer today at www.serv.pa.gov. Be Prepared. Be Aware. Volunteer.

Right to Know Law and Home Addresses

The Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs is sensitive to its licensees' concerns about personal privacy. However, the Pennsylvania Right to Know Law, 65 P.S. § 66.1, mandates release of information contained in a "public record" stored by that agency if a member of the public requests it.

The bureau will take all reasonable steps to safeguard personal information contained in your licensure records. We realize that many of you use your home address on the licensure records maintained by the bureau. However, given the uncertainty over what the Right to Know Law requires, neither the bureau nor the commission can guarantee the confidentiality of the address shown on your licensing record. Therefore, we recommend that if you have a personal security concern, you might want to consider what many of our licensees have already done: use a business address or box number as the official address on licensure records.

Also, with the License 2000 computer system, you may indicate to the commission an address for release to the public that may be different from your home address.

To further protect your privacy and identity, the bureau will only accept a request to change a licensee's address if it is submitted in writing and includes the licensee's Social Security number, license number and the old and new addresses.

Consumer Notice Changes

by Judith Pachter Schulder, Commission Counsel

Since the commission's last newsletter, there is one change and one pending change to the consumer notice requirement in the Real Estate Licensing and Registration Act (RELRA) and the commission's regulations. This article outlines those changes.

Commercial Property exception — On Oct. 27, 2006, the Pennsylvania Legislature amended Section 608 of the RELRA by carving out an exception from the general requirement that real estate licensees provide a written, and where applicable, oral consumer notice to all consumers prior to engaging in substantive discussions about the consumer's real estate needs. Under the amendment, known as Act 125, these disclosures are not required for transactions involving the sale or lease of commercial property to consumers who are not individuals. Commercial property is defined in Section 201 of the RELRA, 63 P. S. § 455.201, as:

(1) Any property, or portion thereof, which is used, occupied or is intended, arranged or designed to be used or occupied for the purpose of operating a business, an office, a manufacturing facility or any public accommodation. This paragraph does not include property which consists of less than five residential units.

(2) Any vacant land offered for sale or lease, or held, for the purpose of constructing or locating thereon a building, structure or facility, or portion thereof, which is intended, arranged or designed to be used or occupied for the purpose of operating a business, an office, a manufacturing facility or any public accommodation. This paragraph does not include vacant land suitable only for construction or location of less than five residential dwelling units.

The amendment to the RELRA became effective on Jan. 25, 2007. As a result of Act 125, the commission amended Section 35.284 of its regulations on May 19, 2007, as follows:

§ 35.284. Disclosures of business relationships.

(a) Disclosure to consumers seeking to sell or purchase residential or commercial real estate.

(1) Except as provided in subsection (e), a licensee shall provide the disclosure summary in § 35.336 (relating to disclosure summary for the purchase or sale of residential or commercial real estate or for the lease of residential or commercial real estate when the licensee is working on behalf of the tenant) to consumers seeking to purchase or sell real estate at the initial interview if the interview occurs in person.

(2) If the initial interview does not occur in person, the licensee shall provide the oral disclosure in § 35.339 (relating to the oral disclosure) at the initial interview and the written disclosure statement in § 35.336 no later than the earlier of:

(i) The first meeting that the licensee has in person with the consumer after the initial interview.

(ii) The time the licensee or any person working with the licensee first shows a property to the consumer.

(b) Disclosure to tenants seeking to lease residential or commercial real estate.

(1) Except as provided in subsection (e), a licensee who is working on behalf of the tenant shall provide the disclosure summary in § 35.336 as required in subsection (a).

(2) Except as provided in subsection (e), a licensee who is working on behalf of the owner shall provide the disclosure summary in § 35.337 (relating to disclosure summary for the lease of residential or commercial real estate when the licensee is working on behalf of the owner) to tenants seeking to lease residential or commercial property at the initial interview.

(c) Disclosure to consumers seeking to sell time-shares. A licensee shall provide the disclosure summary in § 35.338 (relating to disclosure summary for time-share estates) to consumers seeking to purchase time-share estates at the initial interview.

(d) Signed disclosure. A licensee shall provide a copy of the signed disclosure to the consumers referenced in subsections (a)—(c) and retain the signed acknowledgment under § 35.286 (relating to retention and production of records). If a consumer refuses to sign the acknowledgment, the refusal shall be noted on the acknowledgment.

Education Q & A

by Katie Douglas, Education Administrator

Q Where can I find a list of approved providers and a list of approved courses?

The list of approved providers can be accessed at www.dos.state.pa.us/estate by clicking on Licensure Information, then Approved Education Providers. Course information is available from the provider.

Q Are all appraisal courses that are approved by the State Board of Certified Real Estate Appraisers (CREA) automatically approved by the commission?

No, they require separate approval. However, many courses that are acceptable to the commission are acceptable to CREA.

Q Once a course has been approved for broker credit does it also need to be approved for continuing education credit?

No. However, to ensure that licensees receive the appropriate credit for these courses, providers are required to advise the commission on their course approval application that the course is being used for both pre-licensure and continuing education.

Q If a licensee cannot complete the continuing education because of active military service, illness, emergency or hardships, may the licensee receive either a waiver of the requirement or an extension of time to complete the requirement?

Depending on the circumstances involved in each of these categories, the commission has either granted waivers or extended the timeframe for licensees to complete the requirements.

Q How does a licensee obtain a waiver or extension? Is there a deadline?

Licensees who are unable to complete their continuing education requirements by either instructor-led or distance education learning must provide the commission with (1) a letter detailing the reason(s) the waiver is needed, and (2) in the case of an illness, a current letter from the licensee's medical or osteopathic physician outlining the medical condition and prognosis and explaining why it is not possible for the licensee to complete either education alternative.

Waiver letters and attachments must be received by March 31, 2008. Requests received after March 31, 2008, may not be considered before the renewal deadline and may result in the inability to practice.

Q Are all real estate licensees required to complete continuing education in order to renew or reactivate their licenses?

No. The following real estate licensees are not required to submit continuing education:

- a. cemetery association broker
- b. cemetery broker
- c. cemetery broker (multi-license)
- d. cemetery salesperson
- e. rental listing referral agent
- f. campground membership salesperson
- g. builder-owner salesperson
- h. timeshare salesperson
- g. reciprocal licensees

Q Are reciprocal licensees required to provide any documentation with their applications?

Yes. Reciprocal licensees must submit a Certificate of Licensure from the state in which they hold an active standard license dated within 90 days of the renewal.

Q Is there a "required course" this renewal period?

No. Licensees may take 14 hours of commission-approved continuing education elective courses OR a broker course that is at least 15 hours in length. Either must have been taken on or after June 1, 2006.

Q Are there any topics that are unacceptable for continuing education credit?

Like in the last renewal period, while these courses may be helpful to licensees practice, the following courses are not approved for continuing education credit: mechanical office and business skills; for example, typing, speed writing, preparation of advertising copy, development of sales promotional devices, word processing, calculator and computer operation and office management and related internal operations procedures that do not have a bearing on the public interest.

Q May courses be taken from any real estate education provider?

Courses may be taken from an accredited college, university or institute of higher learning or a commission-approved provider.

Q If a licensee reactivated a license during this two-year renewal period is any additional continuing education required to renew by May 31, 2008?

It depends on when the license was reactivated.

Yes. If the license was reactivated BEFORE Dec. 1, 2007, an additional 14 hours must be completed by May 31, 2008.

No, if the license was reactivated ON or AFTER Dec. 1, 2007, additional continuing education is NOT due so long as the license is renewed by May 31, 2008.

Consumer Notice Changes

(e) Exception. The disclosures required under subsections (a) and (b) do not apply to transactions involving the sale or lease of commercial property, as defined in section 201 of the act (63 P. S. § 455.201), to consumers who are not individuals.

Because the commission will not be reprinting its regulation booklet yet, it recommends that you either keep a copy of this change in your current booklet or consult the commission's Web site for the most up-to-date regulations at www.pacode.com/secure/data/049/chapter35/chap35toc.html.

Amendments to the written consumer notice disclosure — Additionally, the commission is in the final stages of revising the written consumer notice in Section 35.336 of its regulations and the definition of “initial interview” in Section 201 of the regulations.

In this revision, the commission proposes to delete the current consumer notice and insert a simplified and condensed version. The revised consumer notice explains: 1) the various relationships available to the consumer, 2) the duties required of all licensees, as set out in Section 606.1 of the RELRA, 63 P.S. §455.606a, and 3) the contractual terms that must be contained in all agreements. It is followed by a caution against disclosing confidential information until an agreement selecting a relationship has been executed and an acknowledgement.

Currently, the definition of “initial interview” includes any conversation between a broker or salesperson and a consumer about the consumer's personal, business or financial needs and motivations. With the passage of time, the commission has found that this definition is too broad because information about a consumer's personal or business needs is often aspirational and not relevant to the consumer's actual purchasing ability. Therefore, the commission also proposes amending this definition by limiting “initial interview” to financial discussions. These proposed changes were published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin at 37 Pa. B. 1499 on April 7, 2007 and may be viewed at:

www.pabulletin.com/secure/data/vol37/37-14/597.html.

The commission anticipates the proposed changes will be finalized by spring.
